Homemakers Items

Now that "the frost is on the pumpkin and the fodder's in the shock" and the cool, crisp breezes are cutting around the corners, it's time to be thinking about Christmas expenditures says Bettie McCluskey, clothing specialist at VPI.

When choosing a sweater you need to be familiar with fibers such as wool, cotton, and synthetics. Worsted and woolen yarns are made from sheep's wool, of course, with the worsteds being made from the longer fibers, tightly twisted. They have a smooth finish and luster. They are resistant to pilling due to the tight twist and fewer fiber ends. "Zephyr" is a worsted yarn spun from very fine wool.

The short fibers provide the wool yarns. They are soft, lightweight and wear well. But they tend to pill and lack the durability of worsted yarns. Shetland and lambs wool are often used in sweaters. Real Shetland wool is a light-weight, warm-feeling wool from the Shetland Islands. The name is often misused today to mean soft, fine wool similiar to real Shetland.

Cashmere is another favorite in wool sweater fibers. It is the fine, silky fleece of the cashmere goat which remains expensive because it is imported and in short supply. Low grade cashmere will have the dark or black, course outer hairs present. Blending cahmere with synthetics gives it added strength.

Angora rabbit hair and mohair, a smooth wiry fiber from the angorn goat, have been popular the last few seasons.

Cotton sweaters are sold in boucle, regular sweater knit, and jersey knit. Cotton is cool, comfortable and easy to launder. Chances are, however, it will need reblocking after a few wearings unless a sag resistant finish has been applied.

Nylon and orlon are the synthetics most often found on the market today. A few of the newer ones, acrilan, vere', or dacron, may be found in knit goods on some markets in Virginia.

Synthetics launder easily, hold their shape, dry quickly, and are resistant to moths. Spun synthetics in the past caused dissatisfaction when the numerous loose ends and static electricity combined to cause pilling.

This has been overcome to some degree by using bulk yarns such as Ban-Lon, Helenca, Tasson, Tycora, Superloft, and others which add bulkiness without excessive loose ends.

No matter what the yarn, good construction is essential for satisfaction. Check the knit, the fashion marks, and neckline in all sweaters and the front edge and buttonholes in cardigans.

The knit should be firm and close, not loose. Lack of stretch and thinness may indicate it has been stretched to size and will draw up when laundered.

Fashion marks at the sleeves are made by adding or dropping stitches in knitting to shape. These will give a better fit and sweaters so made usually cost more. Mock fashion marks are sometimes put on sweaters which are cut and sewen to shape.

Neckline finishes which are double usually hold shape better.

Cardigans which are cut should be cut along one row of stiches. Those cut across more than one row of stiches will pucker between the buttons and buttonholes.

Buttonholes, too, should be cut along one row, whether lengthwise or crosswise, worked with a firm, close stitch, and not cut so near the edge that it is likely to pull out.

People are prone to have suspisions, but why worry? You can't change the make-up of saps.

Farm News

The number of cows in DHIA herds in Virginia increased by 5,119 from 1958 to 1959, and now stands at almost 50,000. Only six states had more cows in DHIA herds than Virginia in 1958, and there was a difference of only 297 cows between

LIME, FERTILIZER OF TOP IMPORTANCE IN MODERN FARMING

Lime and fertilizer are the best buys available today in terms of crop production, says W. W. Moschler, assistant agronomist at VPI.

He claims a dollar invested in lime and fertilizer generally returns more dividends than the same dollar invested any other way. The lower the fertility of the soil, the greater the return per dollar invested. Of course, Moschler says, other good farm management practices are needed along with improved fertility. And naturally there is an upper limit to where soil improvement can be carried and still be profitable.

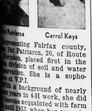
4-H Foursome Win State Honors, Trips

Four young and busy residents of Virginia—including two Virginia Polytechnic Institute students—have been selected winners of top state awards for their 4-H projects in home improvement, tractor, and soil and water conservation.

The boys received expense paid trips to Chicago for the 38th annual 4-H Club Congress to be held Nov. 29 through Dec. 3. With participation in the Chicago gathering, they will be eligible to compete for $400 college scholarships.



Carol Keys

Carol Keys, Fairfax county, and Pat Patriarca, 20, of Route 1, placed first in the division of soil and water judging. She is a sophomore at VPI.

With a background of nearly seven years in 4-H work, she did a project associated with farm woodland. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Curt, and Mrs. F. A. Keys, operated a 54-acre farm in Herndon. Pat identifies herself as a "dairy brat" — her family has lived 36 times in her 20 years "on this earth."

Another top club leader, Larry Gregory of the Surry Senior 4-H Club, did the attractive prize-winning job of actually cut trees, planted and operated machinery while learning to determine utilization of land. He has been interviewed on the Voice of America program on America's farm forests. His trip to Chicago will be sponsored by the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co.

Larry does not live on a farm but the 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Gregory of Graham Park Estate, has moved to the forest improvement work. Larry represents Prince George County. His took up her project nine years ago and has been with the Dumfries club. He is a 1959 graduate of Hilda High School.

Pat, the national corn winner sponsored by the Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

Pat is a V.P.I. student. Gene Gibson, of Route 4, Appomattox, also won top state honors with his electric project. His 4-H background spans 10 years. In addition to his Hebron Community 4-H Club activities and college studies, he is licensed to preach at Hebron Baptist Church.

The ambitious young son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Carson has turned electric power to more labor and time saving devices on his parents' 460-acre farm. His club leader, Colie E. Rock, has found that "Gene gave invaluable leadership to the Community Club through correct and interesting demonstrations and assisting others to do so."

His visit to Chicago will be sponsored by the Westinghouse Educational Foundation.

* * *

Gregory Smith's ambition is to be a dairy farmer and he has made the most of his experience to date with tractors. He is this year's leader with his tractor project.

Gene Carson

Gregory Smith

At 19, Gregory teaches 4-H tractor maintenance classes. His 4-H activities cover nine years. Mason H. Hutchison, leader of the Senior 4-H Club, observes that the son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Smith Jr. of Route 1, Culpeper, "has set an example among Culpeper county farm folks in his care and use of farm machinery."

Holder of several awards in tractor driving contests, the high school senior will go to Chicago as the guest of the American Oil Co.

These winners were selected by the State Extension staff which conducts the 4-H program in cooperation with the USDA.

Mr. Tom Marsh is spending sometime in Newport News with Mr. and Mrs. Victor Jones.

But Moschler says unless a farmer makes around 100 or more buschels of corn per acre in good season, the upper limit has not been reached. For progress beyond the 100 buschel Virginia and the sixth ranking state. mark farmers depend on new or improved varities, irrigation, new fertilizers, and methods of applying the fertilizer—all of which scientists are working on.

Lime and fertilizer are both excellent buys and both are needed, so there is no choice to be made. "It's like the gas and oil in a car. You must put in both if the car is to run as the manufacturer intended."

PROCESSING PROBLEM STUDIED AT VPI

A way to determine the curd-making quality of non-fat dry milk in the production of cottage cheese has been worked out by dairy scientists at VPI.

The need for such a process arose when several processing plants engaged in making "sweet" rennet type cottage cheese reported difficulty in making consistently good cheese from non-fat dry milk.

Using laboratory methods, curd was made from a milk powder of known curd-making ability and this was compared with curd from powder of unknown properties. The controlled conditions eliminated errors due to defective starters or faulty manufacturing methods.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

A Real "Meaty" Subject
Today I've got a tale that really hits close to home—but it's okay, I've got the wife's permission to tell it.
My Mrs. Marsh has been cooking hams—deliciously, I might add—for years. But always, just before she pops 'em into the oven, she slices an inch off one end. Reason: she said her mother always did—that to make ham tastier.
Last week, though, Grandma gave the real reason. Sure, she used to slice an inch from a ham but only when her roasting pan was an inch too short.
From where I sit, all of us do things that can't be backed up by reason or fact. Most time they're pretty silly things—particularly the petty prejudices we build. For instance, some folks may resent your preference for buttermilk at dinner, or mine for a glass of beer. If they'd stop to think "why"—they'd realize they were taking a "slice" off our friendship and for no good reason at all.
